

FAAS Team presents:

Captain Terry London Rinehart on Careers in Aviation

Commercial aviation has changed in so many ways since the days when it was a glamorous and only for the elite few. When we consider the changes, we typically think of it from the viewpoint of the passenger and what we may have personally experienced. There is another wholside of the equation – the dedicated professionals sitting up front, shouldering the bulk of responsibility. San Carlos Flight Center is pleased to welcome guest speaker Captain Terry London Rinehart, who in 1976 became the first woman employed as a commercial pilot by Western Airlines. When, at age nineteen, Terry decided to become an airline pilot, she had no idea that there were no female pilots flying for major United States airline companies. Today there are about 500 women airline captains among the 4,000 women pilots worldwide. Join SCFC and Captain Terry London Rinehart for an informal discussion about the challenges and highlights of Captain Rinehart's career, as well as her thoughts on the future of careers in commercial aviation. Captain Terry London Rinehart was the first woman pilot for Western Airlines and currently flies as a captain for Delta on the Boeing 737. She earned her Bachelor of Science Degree in Aeronautical Operations from San Jose State University. She is one of the
